

MAPPING YOUR CHARACTER'S JOURNEY

This exercise is about exploring the ups and downs of your character's journey. There are three steps

1. Identify four or five key milestones in your character's journey. A 'milestone' is a significant stage or event in your character's journey. Write the milestones down and stick them along the journey.

2. Add in the detail. Between each milestone there will be lots of smaller steps. Think about whether they are positive or negative experiences emotionally. With a pen, write these steps down. The most positive experiences should be near the top of the page, and the worst experiences will be near the bottom of the page.

3. Using the speech bubble notes, add in how your character felt at different points in the journey.
